

Curriculum Vitae

Born (1973) and raised in Lund (mixed with a little bit of Värmland culture), with an interest in different types of cultural activities, such as tennis (playing), drawing and painting, music (playing) and leadership (trained tennis coach), I began studying musicology in the beginning of the 90s – primarily to deepen my interest in jazz and improvisational music. However, the studies in musicology came partly to be extended into other areas of interest, such as art music and interartial relations (i.e. arts in interaction), partly supplemented by studies in philosophy as well as the history of ideas and sciences. This expanding interest continued with studies at the Queensland Conservatorium of Music in Brisbane, Griffith University, Australia (such as post-tonal analysis and music aesthetics) and eventually postgraduate studies in musicology at the University of Gothenburg. In 2007, I defended my dissertation, A Tonally Well-Organized Society or Anarchy? Aesthetic and Social Aspects on Swedish Art Music 1945–1960, which is about Swedish modernist art music in the post-war period with particular focus on debates concerning the aesthetic and social function of music in the emerging welfare society.

In parallel with my postgraduate studies, I taught from 2002 intermedial studies (previously interarts studies) at the Department of Cultural Sciences (now Department of Arts and Cultural Sciences), Lund University – a field that I have continued to teach and research after my dissertation. Since 2010, I have been a senior lecturer in intermedial studies with a particular focus on music, and was in 2016 appointed associated professor of musicology. In addition to this, I have worked widely within the humanities, such as publishing studies, cultural management, digital cultures and in a number of other smaller subjects. Of particular importance, the following published works should be mentioned: “Verbal and Visual Aspects in [Mahler’s] Third Symphony” (2011); “Music and Musicology in the Light of Intermediality and Intermedial Studies” (2012); Crisis and Culture: Cultural Sciences Perspectives on Knowledge, Aesthetics and History (co-edited with Ursula Geisler & Kristofer Hansson) (2013); “The Impact of Cultural Studies on Musicology Within the Context of Word and Music Studies: Questions and Answers” (2014); An Imaginary Musical Road Movie: Transmedial Semiotic Structures in Brad Mehldau’s Concept Album Highway Rider (2016); I Think. And I’m Still not Quite Sure That I exist (2018); “Media Combination in Radio Drama. The Integration of Sound and Music in The Unforgiven” (2021).

Recently, various cancer diagnoses have occupied my mind and time whereby, apart from my general absence from academic work (more or less from August 2018–August 2023 to different extents), I have become increasingly interested in matters related to the body. Examples of such are the body’s relationship to the experience of time and space, pain and waiting (see for instance my essay “Colon: An Essay on Pain, Time and Waiting,” 2019), but also how concepts typical of the field of medical sciences can be used as metaphors in different cultural sciences contexts (such as remission, recidivous, metastasis, auscultation, palpation, etc.). At the moment, I am brainstorming ideas that might incorporate this way of thinking, however without sacrificing my previous experiences in musicology and intermedial studies. In view of this, I envision a development of these experiences into new knowledge about the relation between body, medicine and intermediality in order to thus step over the border and beyond the aesthetic (such as visual art, music, literature, film). Time will tell.

Having said that, my research interests, at the moment, moves in a direction that increasingly integrates my own subjectivity towards the outside world, but also of having a critical approach to the humanities as a whole, where I, at least for myself, try to problematize the question: Why are we doing what we're doing and why don't we just give up what we're doing before it's too late? As a kind of "outsider," I can sometimes note how difficult it is for the humanities to demonstrate their continued relevance in society. As researchers within the humanities, we need to get better at going outside ourselves and not become too blind to our own excellence. As humanists, we bear a special responsibility towards the surrounding society. In other words, we should not be afraid to give up what we are doing and turn around to start all over again.

Keywords: (critical) musicology, intermedial studies, intellectual history, philosophy, cultural sciences, (medical) humanities, semiotics, hermeneutics, phenomenology.
